PEG-LEGGED HEN A FIGHTER

Side-Wallops Fowl That Make Light of Her Infirmary—Lays Regulation Eggs.

Ware, Mass.—Laying five eggs a week in the season when prices are highest is a minor accomplishment of a Ware hen that has a wooden leg. The hen is of Rhode Island red stock, and is owned by Charles F. Wilcox.

The leg was broken last spring, when it was a pullet, by a stone from the hand of a wanton youth. The fractured support was bandaged in splints, and the bone apparently knit. But cold weather had a bad effect and, a sore developing, Mr. Wilcox decided to end the suffering of the hen.

His little daughters pleaded so strongly for the hen that Mr. Wilcox spared her life and amputated the leg. In tribute to its fortitude the hen was christened Martyr.

"Why can't Martyr have a wooden leg like other people?" inquired one of Mr. Wilcox's daughters. Mr. Wilcox facetiously referred the suggestion to Gilbert Girard, who declared the idea practicable, and after taking measurements of Martyr's right leg, fashioned a leg from hard maple and attached it.

The leg, which was fitted several weeks ago, has never been removed, and the daughters of Mr. Wilcox refuse to be convinced that scales, feathers and toes will not eventually appear on the artificial leg.

When Martyr made her first appearance with the banyard fowl after acquiring the wooden leg, her former associates united in attacking her. Martyr, however, had learned the value of the leg as a weapon, and with hard side swipes bowled her antagonists over. Her assailants adopted a conciliatory policy thereafter.

A favorite recreation with Martyr is to insert the wooden leg in the snow, and, curling the right leg beneath its feathers, stand for half an hour or more at a time, enjoying the discomfort of imitators. Once the wooden leg became frozen in the ice, and Martyr had to be rescued.

CONTRACTED CHRONIC DIARRHOEA WHILE IN THE PHILIPPINES.

"While with the U. S. Army in the Philippines, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. I suffered severely from this terrible disease for over three years and tried the prescriptions of numerous physicians, but found nothing that did me any good until I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, two small bottles of which entirely cured me and I have since had no return of the disease."—Herman Stein; 212 N. DEATH OF JAS. DEAN

The Engineer Leaves a
Fortune of $40,000.

James Dean, a kamaaina, died at 2 o'clock yesterday morning at the Queen Hotel, Nuuanu street. The body lies at the Henry Williams' Undertaking Parlor, and will remain there until its disposition is determined today.

The deceased is believed to be worth about $40,000, mostly in sugar stocks, and, as he was a single man, his heirs in Scotland may have quite a comfortable fortune to divide.

Mr. Dean was an engineer and for many years worked on Ewa plantation. He is said to have been the first to install steam pumps in the islands for sugar cane irrigation, these being put in on the Ewa estate. For the past three years he has made his home at the Queen Hotel. He was born in Dundee, Scotland, where his mother and sisters yet reside. He was 45 years of age.

A will is left by the deceased, but it is in the vaults of the Hawaiian Trust Company and cannot be taken out until today. It is quite possible that Mr. Dean may have directed that his remains be shipped to Scotland. If not, he may be buried here on Tuesday afternoon.

SECRETARY HAY'S DEATH

him the President was on terms of the warmest personal friendship. The Secretary's home was one place in Washington which President Roosevelt visited with frequency. Indeed it was a habit with the President while returning to the White House from church on Sunday, to stop at the residence of Secretary Hay for an informal talk about matters of mutual interest. Their conversations on such occasions were not confined by any means to governmental affairs, but covered a wide range of topics, especially those pertaining to literature and the arts and sciences.

Secretary Hay was a warm friend of President Roosevelt's father, and he, therefore, had known the President since the latter's childhood. They had many tastes and desires in common and the ties which bound them to each other were those of deep respect and sincere affection.

MESSAGE TO MRS. HAY.

Immediately on the receipt of the news of Secretary Hay's death, President Roosevelt indited a message to Mrs. Hay expressive in a measure of his profound sorrow at her bereavement. This message was as follows: "Mrs. John Hay, Lake Success. 'I cannot believe the dreadful news. Pray accept our deepest sympathy in your terrible bereavement. I do not know what to say to express my sorrow.'"

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

SECRETARY TAIT'S EULOGY.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, July 1.—Secretary of War Taft passed through Zanesville today. The Secretary stated that this plans as to continuing the trip would be determined by instructions from President Roosevelt, not yet received. Speaking of Mr. Hay's death, Secretary Taft said:

"Secretary Hay was a very remarkable man; remarkable in more ways than one. I count it one of the greatest personal privileges and pleasures to have been associated with him even for a short time at the Cabinet table. He was America's premier diplomat and handled European politics with splendid detail and plan. He was a delightful associate in the Cabinet. His close acquaintance with all the great men of the country from Lincoln down to the present time gave him a versatility that was unmatched. He was full of apt stories and illustrations and was in every sense of the word an ideal companion. He was an apostle of sweetness and light. His nature was tender and affectionate and he will be missed not only for his knowledge of Statecraft but because of the cheer that he brought to the cabinet table. He had achieved the greatest victories in the diplomatic field and the country has sustained a direct loss in his death. When I left Washington last evening it was with the belief that Secretary Hay was better and that any possible danger in his illness had passed. Consequently the news of his death received at Wheeling this morning was such a great shock to me that I could hardly believe it, and I waited, hoping that something might turn up to disprove the first bulletin."

SUFFERINGS OF STRIKERS.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Threatening to return to work unless they were given more money, 1000 strikers gathered at the office of Secretary Charles Sagerstrom of the finance committee of the Teamsters' Joint Council today and berated President Shea and the leaders who have managed the strike. The men who were after their weekly strike benefits belong to the Railway Express and Department Stores Unions. The express drivers gloomily discussed the difficulty of getting money to take home for family necessities.
